To Whom It May Concern

Alicia González Y Gómez interviewed me about journalism and working as a foreign correspondent for an assignment during her double degree in journalism and audiovisual communication – she was studying in Prague as part of the Erasmus programme.

Alicia struck me as an extremely hard-working, conscientious, capable, self-sufficient and talented young person. She asked interesting and probing questions, showing her potential to be a great reporter and an asset to any newspaper.

Alicia struck me as a very pleasant, outgoing and collegial person, who would no doubt work well in any team. In short I cannot recommend her highly enough.
